Waveland Municipal Election Set For September 16

SUBSCRIPTION $2.00 PER YEAR

not like is the one which shows an increase in postal money orders of 14.6 per cent. This shows a decided increase in mail order business. Many folks buy from mail order houses when the same type of merchandise can be bought from the home merchant at probably a more reasonable, or as reasonable, a cost. Why not make a resolution to call on your home merchants and look over their stock and their prices before you send an order to Chicago or some other point for what you think is a bargain. You may find as big a bargain right here in Bay St. Louis.

Our friend, Chance Cole, editor of the picayune Item is attempting to "Tish, Tish" out of the fight to reidentify Hancock County, by having our mail routes emanate from Postoffices in this County. From what we gather from his column last week he now wants to take over the upper part of Hancock County and annex it to Pearl River County. Chance knows what is going to happen when the ball gets to rolling, and, as we said before, he is getting a bit fidgety. He says these folks like to come to their home town and get their mail from their trade center. Remember, Chance, Bay St. Louis is the County seat of Hancock County, and folks are always interested in their seat of government. Of course he says our fight is futile, and that we have the wrong pig by the ear, but time only will tell.

RECORD DISPUTES STATEMENT

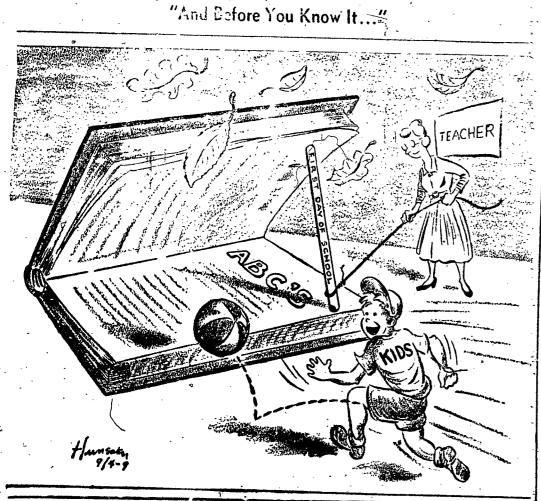

The Mississippi Business Review's report on business activities in this area for the month of July 1950, shows an increase in business in Bay St. Louis of 21.4 per cent over July 1949. The increases shown are bank deposits 30.3 per cent; postal receipts, 5.7 per cent; money order sales, 14.6 per cent; and telephones in service 6.3 per cent. This is a healthy outlook and apparently, does not bear out recent statements of the loss of business in Bay St. Louis because of the removal of the slot machines from cations Commission. We are deepour city.

Common sense would tell us that the money placed in of Keesler Air Force Base, for the slot machines did not reach trade channels. The small sending over a mobile generator amount which the individual, in whose place of business these machines were operated, received, was used in their business, but the bulk of the "TAKE" was of no benefit to this community. This blood money was stored away for the purpose of corrupting public officials and to be used as slush fund in elections, to enslave in servitude to the racketeers, men who, possibly, could have made good law enforcement officers.

The report of the Mississippi Business Review definitely shows that there is no need for slot machines for us to zeal, greatly facilitating the task have a thriving little city. All that is necessary is for of chose in charge of operations. the business men to work in cooperation to build a bigger and better Bay St. Louis. The answer to our problem lies in their hands, and when the day arrives that they can sit across the table from one another without distrust, we ever emergency might have will have our answer.

We have so much which can be done to further Bay St. Louis, and Hancock County as a whole. We are growing, but it is a slow process. It can certainly be made to move along at a little faster pace, if those most interested, the business men of this community, would become interested in a definite program and work to see that it is brought to a successful conclusion.

The idea of fear of retaliation from those who have led the rackets and who should be outstanding business and political leaders in our midst, should be forever removed from the minds of our fair thinking folks. The way to win a fight is to fight. Pussyfooting has yet to accomplish Mrs. Theo Tudury anything. Bear in mind and put your shoulder to the Bay St. Louis, Miss. wheel with one purpose in mind—business is on the increase, and the percentage of increase can be made much larger. you and not the slot machines, are the main cog in the your help in making a difficult wheel.

Show Business Offers Tragedy, Heart Break for Stage-Struck

By BILLY ROSE-

As everyone and his Aunt Esmerelda knows, there's no busing ike show business for the fortunate few who make the grade. But In 1946, a stage-struck lass from Nebraska named Judy Peters move anto a boarding house off Times Square and began looking for work i the theatre. As per usual, she was average bright, round of face, figur and eye, and determined to make her mark on the 45th Street marquee

A few months later, thanks to a stage manager who took a shine to ner, she got her first part-a threeline role in a twoact play that lasted four performances. For a solid and sobering year after that, Judy made the rounds, eating the usual health salads and waiting on tables to pay for her furnished (after a fashion) room. It was heartand arch-breaking work, but it finally paid off when the Big Chance came along-the second lead in a Shaw revival.

THE DAY AFTER the play opened out of town, Judy wired her folks they wouldn't have to help her any more, and when George Jean Nathan singled her out for mention in his review the farm girl figured it was all over but the movie offers. One swell notice, bowever, doth not a star make, and when the play closed after a run of three months, Judy bad to go back to reading the casting notes in Actors Cues. By this time her family, fed up with ber show business shengingens, had out her on notice that the Last April, after three grim year of scratch-as-scratch-canning. Judy was handed the script of Keith Winters' old hit, "The Shining Hour," by the director of a sum mer stock company. He asked her to bone up on the part of Judy Linden-a typical farm girl whose accent was pure Midwest, and whose face and figure were more silo than sex.

THE AUDITION WENT off with out hitch or hesitation, and Judy was in the heaven above seventh when the director complimented her on how well she read her lines. He told her he'd let her know definitely the following day, and she went back to her one-room-and-half-bath to wait.

The next night the landlady smelled gas, but by the time the police arrived Judy was dead. On the bed by her side was the script of "The Shining Hour" opened to the scene in Act Two where Judy Linden. the farm girl, takes her own

Editor:

On behalf of the Hancock County Chapter of the American Red Cross. we wish to thank each member of the Disaster Committee, all city and county officials, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the 302nd AM Trac Battalion, the business houses, and the community at large, for the very splendid work and spirit of cooperation, shown during the recent storm emergency. We wish to thank the telephone company for keeping the lines open, the telegraph company, the local and other newspapers, the radio stations in New Orleans, Picayune and Gulfport, and the short wave radio station operated by Mr. Louis E. Depend Upon Cooperation

Dear Chapter Chairman: In July, I wrote you asking for decision and your prompt response was heartwarming. I am sure you will be glad to know that there will be no Emergency Daive this fall. Instead, we will depend upón your continued, generous cooperation to help finance our stricken areas until the 1951 March of Dimes. With polio incident still mounting, adding to the already staggering load of 1949 cases still receiving care, our financial problems are undeniably grave. But after consulting with our State Representatives and many of our Chapter people, we all believe that it would be better to weather the storm this way than to go to the public again this year. Financially, our attention is this. There is, roughly, $2,100,000 available for epidemic aid at National Headquarters, and we now are advancing more than $1,000-000 a month to Chapters whose treasuries have been exhausted by the heavy case loads they are carrying. Although we can't know to the exact dollar what our 1950 patient care bill will be, careful analysis indicates that days of November.

On the other hand, there was reasuries of our solvent Chapters on August 1st to carry us through the year, if it were made availavie to National Headquarters to be used only for epidemic relief. We believe that you, as well as those who contributed this money, would want these reserves of Larayette to reach the priestused before we make another

The chief subject of private comment among the Members in the cloakroom these days is the question of adjournment or recess and when. SPENDING

So far we have been unable to get any accurate ligures on the amount of money authorized and expended at this session of the Congress. But of one thing we may be sure and take is that the figures will be astronomic. When the Korean War broke out, the public debt was in exjourn within the next few days; cess of two hundred and niftyseven and one-half billion dolars. This means an obligation, it equally distributed, of six thousand and eight hundred dollars for every American family. This collossal debt is greater than our total national income, even with one inflated dollar. It is ten times greater than all of the gold in Fort Knox and five times greater than all of the money in circulation and held in the United States Treasury. Moreover, it is greaver than all of the United States life, insurance in force and is two and one-half times greater than all of the deposits in the banks of this country.

Even should the war be confined to Korea, it will cost us another vwenty-five to fifty billion dollars. Add to that the fact that we are going to have to maintain a strong, military establishment for the next five to twenty-five years, all depending on how long the present regime in Russia wil continue, in power, and the picture is not a a pretty one.

As long as Stalin & Co. continue their world conquest intentions, we must of necessity keep spending money for national security, and even though better than two-thirds of our debt and our expenditures either go towards the payment or preparation Christ Church Episcopal, Chap- for future wars, we must econoters I and II met in the home mize in some field. HOUSE RECESS

As we pointed out in this column last week, there are considerable confusion and differences of opinion about Congressional adjournment. The House has been ahead of the Senate practically the whole year, and on two previous occasions took brief recesses in order to permit the Senate to catch up. Even this figure does not fully measure the gains in power farming, he pointed out, since tractors and trucks, the most essential agricultural power units, have more than doubled since 1941.

The most significant fact about farm mechanization, in view of the current international situation, Reynolds said, is the fact that the change from animal to mechanical power during the past ten years has made 20 million additional acres available for growing food for human use instead of for animal consumption. This gain is exclusive of increased productive capacities and laborsaving effected by mechanization.

Suggestions For Mothers Of First Grade Students

In conjunction with the Parent Teachers Association's program concerning the welfare of children and youth in the school, Mrs. E. A. Gamard released the following suggestions to mothers with children entering school for the first time this year.

First, all mothers should attempt to make the school known to the new pupil before his first day. A sense of familiarity will overcome the strangeness of this new phase of life. Second, explain to the child what will be expected of him. Third, let him get to know some of the children who will be in nis class. He won't feel strange with a few familiar faces around

Cack Of Railroad Fare To Maryland Helps U.T. Carr Build His Life In Clermont Harbor

BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1950 _

Lack of railroad fare to Silver Spring, Maryland, kept Hugh Turner Carr in Clermont Harbor in 1925. Today, the possessor is still in Clermont Harbor, and is one of the outstanding residents of this beautiful little Mississippi Coast village.

As superintendent of construction for Woodside Park Corporation in Silver Springs, sickly He T. Carr became friends with the president of the corporation, Charles W. Hopkins, who before the storm of 1915, owned a hotel in Clermont Harbor; he often told his employee that he wanted him to rebuild his old hotel some day.

He was the only child in the nome of his country relatives; most of the time was spent with adults, and he was able to note in detail the queer things that the people of the "horse and buggy" era did. "Although these country peo-

Collecting antiques is not the only hobby Mr. Carr has; during the war he made a trip to New York and visited a plant there that dealt in plastics. He studied their technique and methods of production with lucite and when he returned to Clermont, he was sent two hundred pounds of scrap plastic. He began his own experiments, and today he has chandeliers in his home that he built. These chandeliers represent hundreds of hours of labor and hundreds of hand ground and hand polished prisms.

MISSISSIPPI'S expanding oil and gas industry discovered 6 new fields in the first half of 1950. They are the Natchez, Sibley, Glenn Aubin, North Natchez and Kingston fields in Adams county and the West Lincoln field in Lincoln county. Also discovered was a new producing sand in the Pickens field in Yazoo county.

THIS GIVES MISSISSIPPI 41 oil and gas fields with 56 producing reservoirs, since several fields produce from more than one depth. Crude oil production is approximately 105,000 barrels daily and current gas production is approximately 425,000,000 cubic feet daily. THE OIL AND GAS INDUSTRY has become a major factor in Mississippi's economy, furnishing employment to over 4000 men and women and paying taxes of several million dollars yearly. Spurred on by Mississippi's favorable attitude toward industry, it will continue to expand and develop the mineral resources of
